

I feel that it would be depriving a growing segment of radio listeners yo not let satellite radio provide locally oriented weather and trafic conditions. I like very much listening to my sat, radio and will continue to do so and feel that it will be less safe if I'm not to have this kind of service available. I like the idea of being able to pick out a channel that I know is making this type of info available at any time and any place I am in my vehicle. Please let the law of supply and demand dictate what works and not stifle new technology by protectionism of those who would sit back and not innovate but hope that govt. will bail them out when they do not try new things or just offer more and better choices that aren't as east to do as just sick back and cry about how great it used to be while not looking ahead to find new and better ways to compete.
